Zeno's paradoxes are a set of philosophical problems generally thought to have been devised by Greek philosopher Zeno of Elea (c. 490–430 BC) to support Parmenides' doctrine that contrary to the evidence of one's senses, the belief in plurality and change is mistaken, and in particular that motion is nothing but an illusion. It is usually assumed, based on Plato's Parmenides (128a–d), that ...

Zeno Cosini è il protagonista del romanzo La coscienza di Zeno di Italo Svevo.. Reasoning the Fast and Frugal Way: Models of Bounded Reasoning the Fast and Frugal Way: Models of Bounded Reasoning. This book presents a new theory of human decision-making, one that is based on the idea of bounded rationality. The authors argue that the human mind is not a supercalculator, as suggested by the Laplacean Demon, but rather a collection of simple, fast, and frugal heuristics. These heuristics are designed to help us make decisions in a world that is too complex and uncertain for a full-blown rational calculation. The book is divided into two parts: the first part discusses the theory of bounded rationality, and the second part presents a series of experiments that test the theory. The experiments show that the simple heuristics are indeed effective, and that they are used by humans in a wide range of situations. The book is a valuable contribution to the study of human decision-making, and it is a must-read for anyone interested in the topic.
